UNCO'UNSELLABLE. adj. Not to be advised.
It would have been uncounselable to have march'd to any distance, and have left such an enemy at their backs. Clarendon.

UNCO'UNTABLE. adj. Innumerable.
Those uncountable, glorious bodies, were not set in the firmament for no other end than to adorn it. Raleigh.

UNCO'UNTERFEIT. adj. Genuine; not spurious.
True zeal is not any one single affection of the soul, but a strong mixture of many holy affections, filling the heart with all pious intentions; all, not only uncounterfeit, but most fervent. Sprat's Sermons.

TO UNCO'UPLE. v. a. To loose dogs from their couples.
Uncouple in the western valley, go;
Dispatch, I say, and find the forester. Shaksp.
The hunt is up, the morn is bright and gray;
The fields are fragrant, and the woods are green;
Uncouple here, and let us make a bay. Shaksp.
In which th' uncoupled hounds began the chase. Dryden.

UNCO'URTEOUS. adj. Uncivil; unpolite.
In behaviour some will say, ever sad, surely sober, and somewhat given to musing, but never uncourteous. Sidney.

UNCO'URTEOUSLY. adv. Uncivilly; unpolitely.
Though somewhat merrily, yet uncourteously he rail'd upon England, objecting extreme beggary, and mere barbarousness unto it. Ajcham's Schoolmaster.

UNCO'URTLINESS. n. f. Unfuitableness of manners to a court; inelegance.
The quakers presented an address, which, notwithstanding the uncourtlines of their phrases, the sense was very honest. Addison.

UNCO'URTLY. adj. Inelegant of manners; uncivil.
The lord treasurer not entering into those refinements of paying the publick money upon private considerations, hath been so uncourtly as to stop it. Swift.

UNCO'UTH. adj. [uncu't, Saxon.] Odd; strange; unusual.
A very uncouth fight was to behold,
How he did fashion his untoward pace;
For as he forward mov'd his footing old,
So backward still was turn'd his wrinkled face. Fairy Queen.
The lovers standing in this doleful wise,
A warrior bold unwarlike approached near,
Uncouth in arms yclad, and strange disguise. Fairfax.
I am surpriz'd with an uncouth fear;
A chilling sweat o'erruns my trembling joints;
My heart suspects more than mine eye can see. Shaksp.
The trouble of thy thoughts this night
Affects me equally; nor can I like
This uncouth dream, of evil sprung, I fear. Milton.
Say on;
For I that day was absent, as befel,
Bound on a voyage uncouth, and obscure,
Far on excursion toward the gates of hell. Milton.
It was so uncouth a sight, for a fox to appear without a tail, that the very thought made him weary of his life. L'Estrange.
The secret ceremonies I conceal. Dryden.
Uncouth, perhaps unlawful to reveal.
I am more in danger to misunderstand his true meaning, than if I had come to him with a mind unpossessed by doctors of my sect, whose reasonings will of course make all chime that way, and make the genuine meaning of the author seem harsh, strained, and uncouth to me. Locke.
He made that a pleasant study, which, in the hands of Bartolus and Baldus, was uncouth and rugged. Baker.

UNCO'UTHLY. adv. Oddly; strangely.
Venetians do not more uncouthly ride,
Than did their lubber state mankind bestride. Dryden.

UNCO'UTHNESS. n. f. Oddness; strangeness.
To deny himself in the lesser instances, that so when the greater come, they may not have the disadvantage of uncouthness, and perfect strangeness, to enhance their difficulty,
must be acknowledged reasonable. Decay of Piety.

TO UNCREA'TE. v. a. To annihilate; to reduce to nothing;
to deprive of existence.
Who created thee, lamenting learn;
Who can uncreate thee thou shalt know. Milton.
Light dies before her uncreating word.
Thus at her felt approach, and secret might,
Art after art goes out, and all is night. Pope's Dunciad.

UNCREA'TED. adj.
c. Not yet created.
How hast thou disturb'd Heav'n's blessed peace, and into nature brought Mystery, uncreated till the crime
Of thy rebellion? Milton.

2. [Incr'e, Fr.] Not produced by creation.
What cause within, or what without is found,
That can a being uncreated bound?
The next paragraph proves, that the idea we have of God is God himself; it being something, as he says, un- created. Locke.

UNC

UNCREDITABLENESS. n. f. Want of reputation.
To all other dissuaves, we may add this or the uncredit- ableness: the best that can be said is, that they are un- foolishly, whereof the one part devours the other. Dec. of Phil.

UNCRO'PPED. adj. Not cropped; not gathered.
Thy abundance wants Partakers, and uncropp'd falls to the ground. Milton.

See your offspring, Albion, bound. Dryden's Albion.

UNCRIOX. n. f. [uncrion, Fr.]
1. The act of anointing.
The unction of the tabernacle, the table, the laver, the altar of God, with all the instruments appertaining thereto, made them for ever holy. Hooker, b. v. f. 20.

2. Unguent; ointment.
The king himself the sacred unction made;
As king by office, and as priest by trade. Dryden.

3. The act of anointing medically.
Such as are of hot constitutions, should use bathing in hot water, rather than unctions. Arbuthnot on Aliment.

4. Any thing softening, or lenitive.
Mother,
Lay not that flattering unction to your soul,
That not your trespas, but my madness speaks. Shaksp.

5. The rite of anointing in the last hours.
Their extreme unction, administered as the dying man's viaticum, which St. James mentioned as the ceremony of his recovery, may be added. Lamartine's Fundamentals.

6. Any thing that excites piety and devotion.
UNCTUOUSLY. n. f. [from unctuous.] Fatness; oiliness.
Fulgurous exhalations contain an unctuousity in them, and arise from the matter of fuel. Brown's Vulgar Errors.

UNCTUOUS. adj. Fat; clammy; oily.
Dry up thy barrow'd veins, and plough-torn leas,
Whereof ingrateful man, with liqu'rish draughts,
And morfels unctuous, greases his pure mind,
That from it all consideration slips. Shaksp. Lear.
A wand'ring fire,
Compact of unctuous vapours, which the night
Condenses, and the cold envious round,
Kindled through agitation to a flame. Milton's Par. Lost.
The trees were unctuous fir, and mountain ash. Dryden.
Whether thy unctuous exhalations are,
Fir'd by the sun, or seeming to alone. Dryden.
Th' infernal winds,
Dilating, and with unctuous vapour fed,
Disdain'd thy narrow cells. Philips.
Campfire, oil-olive, linseed-oil, spirit of turpentine, and amber, are fat, sulphureous, unctuous bodies. Newton.

A sweaty reaper from his tillage brought
First fruits, the green ear, and the yellow sheaf, Uncull'd, as came to hand. Milton's Par. Lost.

UNCULABLE. adj. Not blamable.
Those canons do bind, as they are edicts of nature; which the Jews observing as yet unwritten, and thereby framing such church orders, as in their law were not preferred, are notwithstanding in that respect unculpable. Hobbes.

UNCUCKLED. adj. Not made a cuckold.
As it is a heart-breaking to see a handsome man loosewiv'd, so it is a deadly sorrow to behold a foul knave uncuck-
led. Shaksp. Ant. and Cleopatra.

UNCULTIVATED. adj. [incultus, Lat.]
1. Not cultivated; not improved by tillage.
Our isle, indeed, too fruitful was before;
But all uncultivated lay,
Out of the solar walk. Dryden.
God gave the world to men in common; but since he gave it for their benefit, it cannot be supposed he meant it should always remain common and uncultivated. Locke.

2. Instructed; not civilized.
The first tragedians found that serious stile
Too grave for their uncultivated age. Rowson.
These are instances of nations, where uncultivated nature has been left to itself, without the help of letters. Locke.

UNCUMBERED. adj. Not burthened; not embarrassed.
Lord of yourself, uncumber'd with a wife. Dryden.

UND

UNDURABLE. adj. That cannot be curbed, or checked.

Made out of her impatience, which not wanted Shrewdness of policy. Shaksp. Ant. and Cleopatra.

UNDURABLE. adj. Licentious; not restrained.
With frank, and with undurb'd plainness,
Tell us the Dauphin's mind. Shaksp. Hen. V.

TO UNDU'RL. v. a. To loose from ringlets, or convolutions.
There stands a rock; the rising billows roar
Above his head in forms; but when 'tis clear,
Unroll their ridgy backs, and at his feet appear. Dryden.
The lion's foe lies prostrate on the plain,
He sheaths his paws, undur'd his angry mane;
And, pleas'd with bloodless honours of the day,
Walks over, and disdains th' inglorious prey. Dryden.
The furies sink upon their iron beds,
And snakes undur'd hang list'ning round their heads. Pope.

TO UNDU'RL. v. n. To fall from the ringlets.
My fleece of woolly hair now undur'd,
Even as an adder, when she doth unroll
To do some fatal execution? Shaksp. Titus Andronicus.

UNDUR'LED. adj. Not collected into ringlets.
Alike in feature both, and garb appear;
With honest faces, though undur'd hair. Dryden.
But since, alas! frail beauty must decay;
Cur'd or undur'd, since locks will turn to grey;
What then remains, but well our pow'r to use,
And keep good humour still, whate'er we lose? Pope.

UNDURENT. adj. Not current; not passing in common payment.
Your voice, like a piece of undurent gold, is not crack'd within the ring. Shaksp. Hamlet.
I can no other answer make but thanks;
And thanks, and ever thanks: and oft good turns
Are shuffl'd off with such undurent pay. Shaksp. Lear.

TO UNDU'RSE. v. a. To free from any execration.
Unurse their souls; their peace is made
With head, and not with hands. Shaksp. Richard II.

UNDUR'EST. adj. Not execrated.

any language or secret imprecation of mine, not long after pays his own and his eldest son's heads. K. Charles.
Heav'n's sure has kept this spot of earth undur'd,
To show how all things were created first. Waller.

UNDUR'UT. adj. Not cut.
We must resign! heav'n's great soul doth claim,
In storms as loud as his immortal fame:
His dying groans, his last breath shake our isle,
And trees undur'd fall for his funeral pile. Waller.

TO UNDA'M. v. a. To open; to free from the restraint of mounds.
When the fiery funts too fiercely play,
And shrivell'd herbs on with'ring stems decay;
The wary ploughman on the mountain's brow,
Undams his wat'ry stores. Dryden's Georgicks.

UNDAMAGED. adj. Not made worse; not impaired.
Plants will frequent changes try,
Undamag'd, and their marriageable arms
Conjoin with others. Philips.

Bring forth men children only;
For thy undanted metal should compose Nothing but males. Shaksp. Macbeth.
With him went
Harman, who did the twice fir'd Harry save,
And in his burning ship undanted fought. Dryden.
Mirror of ancient faith in early youth!
Undanted worth, inviolable truth!
No foe unpunish'd in the fighting field,
Shall dare thee. Dryden.

UNDAN'TEDNESS. n. f. Boldness; bravery; intrepidity.
Luther took up a briske air of assurance, and slew'd a particular undantedness in the cause of truth, when it had so mighty an opposer. Atterbury.
The art of war, which they admired in him, and his un- dantedness under dangers, were such virtues as these islanders were not used to. Pope.

UNDAN'TEDLY. adv. Boldly; intrepidly; without fear.
It shall bid his soul go out of his body undantedly, and lift up its head with confidence, before faints and angels. South.

UNDAN'ZLED. adj. Not dimmed, or confus'd by splendour.
Here matter new to gaze the devil met Undazzled. Milton's Par. Lost, b. iii. l. 614.
